Hope Should Speak

Out Against 'Frisco

Service Reduction

Hugo, Okla., has appealed to Hope Chamber of Commerce for support in the fight to prevent the 'Frisco railroad from discontinuing passenger service between here and there—and it's time we did something about it.

A railroad operates in the public service, founded on initial grants of land, and supported by rates supervised by government to give a guaranteed return to both workers and management. The road, therefore, can't decide what portion of service it aims to give; it's got to do the whole job. And if patronage is light on so-called feeder lines such as the one between Hope and Hugo it is still true that government looks at the operation of the whole railroad and fixes rates with the expectation that main line service will take care of a reasonable number of schedules in the rural areas.

That cities and towns must remain ever jealous of their transportation rights is a fact made obviously clear by (1) the steady reduction in Hope passenger service offered by the Missouri Pacific, and (2) the proposal of the 'Frisco to discontinue passenger business altogether.

Hope can either fight this trend in alliance with other towns—or it can fight it alone. Alone, you're lost always.

Hugo is asking Hope to be represented at the hearing on the 'Frisco abandonment proposal, which will be held January 21 at Oklahoma City.

Common sense recommends that we be there—and well armed.

If it hasn't occurred to you what discontinuance of passenger service means, remember that the United States Mail travels with passengers, not freight. The effect the 'Frisco abandonment would have on Hope's mail service is described in the following letter written by Wylie R. McDonald, district superintendent of the Railway Mail Service at Denison, Texas, to Talbot Field, Jr., attorney of Hope:

"Dear sir: I have your letter of January 10, 1949, in regard to the matter of discontinuing the 'Frisco passenger trains east of Hugo.

"The authorized mail service on the trains is for a 15-foot apartment railway mail car for the distribution of mail en route by railway postal clerks. Also transported is 'made up' mails for the offices on the line. When the amount of made up mails exceeds the capacity of the mail car, space is used in the baggage car, for which the company receives additional revenue. The pay varies, depending on the amount carried.

"At the present time the RPO car pay, and the storage space used in the baggage car amounts to, on a yearly basis, $17,303.58, for that portion of the line, Hugo to Hugo."

"If the trains are discontinued, a star route service between Ashdown and Hugo, by motor truck over the highway, will be established. The truck service will handle 'made up' mails to the offices. This kind of service can not be as satisfactory as RPO distribution en route."

"Is Hope going to abandon Hugo, Okla., and the rural territory along the 'Frisco line within our own Hope trade area which looks to us for help in preserving passenger mail service—or are we going to put up the kind of fight that is expected of a city of 10,000?"

Britishers Like Being Stranded

San Francisco, Jan. 18—(P)—Eating like kings and sightseeing like paupers, 32 British citizens are stranded here awaiting transportation to New England.

They haven't a penny to spend—and they may be here for months. But the travel agency handling their transportation is paying all their room and board bill at their downtown hotel; and meals in England were never like this.

"Just to have all that eggs and ham and bacon to eat—that is enough," sighed Mrs. George E. Dunn. "The only snag is when we go about town and see all those lovely clothes."

The 32 reached San Francisco last Thursday en route to New Zealand where they plan to settle. Here, they discovered, there had been a slip—they had no air reservations to continue their trip.

Rent Control Extension Expected

Washington, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Vice President-elect Barkley said after a White House conference today that congress will act soon to extend rent and export controls.

Democratic leaders from the Senate and the house conferred with President Truman. Barkley said they had a general discussion of the legislative program but reached no decisions as to what will be taken up first.

But he said rent and export controls will be among the early ones. The present rent control law expires March 31. The administration is asking for a two-year extension of the law in tightened form.

For more important action, congressional leaders have ticketed first pay raise for the president and second state approval of Dean Acheson to be the new secretary of state.

Completing the organization of Congress comes ahead of that. To facilitate this, Democrats called a meeting to okay the committee assignments and a shake-up of the books: two southern Democrats off the un-American activities committee and puts on an all-lawyer team.

The White House conference of Democratic leaders was one of the regular Monday morning meetings that Mr. Truman plans to hold regularly while Congress is in session.

In addition to Barkley, those attending the conference were Senator Lucas of Illinois, who is to become Democratic leader in the senate when Barkley takes the vice-presidential oath, and Representative McCormack of Massachusetts, the house Democratic leader.

Lucas presented the president with a solid gold horseshoe. He said it was a "good luck" piece made by the Phoenix Horseshoe company of Joliet, Ill.

Twins Born 5 Minutes After Mother Dies

Elgin, Ill., Jan. 17.—(UPI)—Carlton H. Larson, 29, said today that the twin girls delivered from his wife's body five minutes after she died could never make up for her loss.

Larson was happy when the doctor told him and his wife, Marcella, that they were about to become the parents of twins.

"I hope they'll be girls," he said. "Maybe they'll be as pretty as Marcella."

Larson got his wish. But he lost his beloved wife.

Doctors at St. Joseph's hospital fought four hours Saturday night to save both Mrs. Larson and the two infants. When Mrs. Larson died, they performed an emergency cesarean section and the two babies were brought into the world five minutes later.

Mrs. Larson's death shattered all the dreams her husband had nurtured during the months he spent with the air forces in the Pacific theater.

The dreams had been very near to fulfillment. He and Mrs. Larson had managed to buy a small home in this Chicago suburb and son, Gary, had been born 21 months ago.

"But that's all ended now," Larson said. "I can't pick up the pieces."

Larson said he would ask his wife's mother, Mrs. Leah Kniss, to give his son to his brother, Mrs. Charles Larson of Rockford, Ill.

"I'll try to get along alone," he said.

Woman Raped Aboard Train

Klamath Falls, Ore., Jan. 17.—(UPI)—The man who crept into the lower berth of Mrs. Opal Holmes and raped her aboard the Southern Pacific railroad's west coast limited last night and wore long underwear, officials said today.

Klamath Falls County Prosecutor Dayton E. Van Vactor said he believed those two clues would help solve the case "in short order."

Mrs. Holmes, wife of a North Richland, Wash., atomic plant employee, charged that a man opened the curtains of her berth Saturday night and attacked her as she slept.

The train, speeding toward Los Angeles, was the same one on which the famous "Lower 13" murderer occurred in January five years ago. A woman passenger, Mrs. Martha Virginia James, 21, Norfolk, Va., was raped and killed by a Negro cook, Robert Folkes, who later was executed.

The train was traveling through Lane County, Ore., over almost the same section of its route when Mrs. Holmes was raped Saturday.

Van Vactor said that during the evening, Mrs. Holmes played penny ante poker in the lounge car with an unidentified woman, two soldiers and two sailors. During the game, they discussed the "Lower 13" murder.

Mrs. Holmes told investigators she retired to her berth in Lower 5 shortly after the lounge closed at 1 a.m. She said she was awakened about 2:15 when a man assaulted her.

The two sailors were questioned by detectives for 7 1/2 hours yesterday and then were released. Their names were withheld at their request. Both are married and have children.

At the time of the attack, Mrs. Holmes was en route to Los Angeles to testify in a court case. She was whisked off the limited at Glendale, Cal., and taken to the home of relatives.

Former Air Ace Pleads Guilty to Treason

New York, Jan. 17.—(UPI)—Martin Monti, 27-year-old former air force lieutenant, pleaded guilty today to treason charges.

The Florissant, Mo., resident was indicted last Oct. 14 on charges he gave himself and his plane up to the Germans in Italy between Oct. 13, 1944 and May 8, 1946 after going AWOL in Karachi, India.

The indictment alleged Monti volunteered his services to the Germans, was released as a prisoner of war and broadcast for the Nazis from Berlin as Martin Weithaupt. Subsequently, the indictment charges, Monti became an officer in the S. S. Elite Guard.

After the Nazi capitulation, it was charged, Monti made his way to Italy and joined the American Fifth Army.

Some 150 talesmen had been called before Federal Judge Robert A. Inch at the start of the trial today.

World Owes United Nations a Debt of Gratitude for Armistice in Kashmir Crisis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
U.S. Foreign Affairs Analyst

We owe the United Nations a debt of gratitude for securing an armistice in the Kashmir crisis which threatened to plunge the Indian peninsula into conflict.

The warring dominions of India and Pakistan—both eager to absorb this huge, rich state—have ground arms. There is to be a plebiscite to determine which dominion the people of Kashmir wish to join, for it is essential that they attach themselves to one or the other. The British in granting independence to the whole Indian peninsula strongly urged that the principalities affiliate with one of the dominions.

So the UN commission, having made its prideful report at Lake Success, is heading back to supervise the voting. Good luck go with them! They'll need it.

A highly interesting but delicate aspect of this situation is that the commission will have to work with the Maharajah of Kashmir, his highness Sir Hari Singh. He is the notorious "Mister A" black-mail case which involved a bed-room scene in Paris and was tried in a London court.

As things stand, the Maharajah's chances of retaining his autocracy would seem to be most precarious.

However, he is lucky to have ruled at all, for back in 1923 when he was 28—he got mixed up in a mess which threatened his succession to the throne. That was the notorious "Mister A" black-mail case which involved a bed-room scene in Paris and was tried in a London court.

The youthful prince then was heir of his uncle, who was ruler of Kashmir. Hari got framed in one of those "unhand my wife, you villain" plots which, as I recall, cost him about $750,000 before he wisely called for help.

Of course the blackmailers had to be brought to trial, and the British government did its best to protect the honor of the Kashmir throne and of Prince Hari by suppressing his name. He was mysteriously labeled "Mister A" by the authorities and disclosure of his real identity was officially forbidden.

So the reporters (of whom your columnist was one) worked under wraps until finally the truth leaked out.

Well, conviction for blackmail was secured and the prince was relieved of further pressure from the gang. However, his succession to the throne hung in the balance for a considerable time. Finally Britain and Hari's uncle forgave him and he was taken back into their good graces.

The uncle was a shrewd old boy with a keen sense of humor—the sort you would expect to give youth plenty of leeway for indiscretion. I met him in New Delhi in 1918 and found him in great estate, although he was a handful for the British at times. Whenever a British official raised any uncomfortable question with the Maharajah, the ancient fox would "fall asleep" and so remain until the danger was past. That was a trick which always worked.

Sir Hari succeeded his uncle in 1925. Now he faces more trouble.

Commence the letter "(DESIGNATE HERE THE WORD COVERING THE SECRET INGREDIENT)" is important to me because . . ." Enter as many times as you wish, but include with each entry any of following: (a) 2 inches of metal opener strip from can; or (b) slogan "The Cup of Southern Hospitality" cut from jar label or paper package. Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Copyright, 1947

By King Features Syndicate.

William O. Douglas and Eric Johnston, lawyers with a knack for cheap publicity, have been arching their necks in preliminary bids for the Democratic nomination for president in 1952. Douglas is a justice of the supreme court who discovers that he can get the job he thought it was when he was glad to be appointed for life. He is right. When he reached the court, membership was a distinguished honor. But the appointments of Roosevelt and Truman, including his own, have brought this bench into disrepute from which a man of sensitivity could want to dissociate himself. That Douglas wants to get off is no matter of qualm or scruple, however, as is well at ease in this moral and philosophical climate and is restless only because he is young, strong, bored, mischievous and ambitious. At this writing, he has a glowing record of both nomination and election.

Mr. Johnston is a man of potty prominence. He has imitated Wendell Willkie by repeating Democratic platitudes in Republican or other capitalistic areas and proclaiming these to be the new and progressive program. He could have cribbed them from any left-wing clip sheet. He is at present counsel for the movie industry which has been our most generous employer of Communists.

Both Douglas and Johnston have been courting the favor of the union bosses by proposing that professional unionists be sent abroad to represent us in the embassies. Douglas made his pass at the goons in a vulgar solicitation to the CIO's national convention in Portland, Ore. Johnston horned the same note in a highly perishable book published strictly for the review.

Both of them thought that the American business and professional man had exhausted his prestige abroad and could not get along with the new gang of predators which are called labor governments.

It is true that these European governments are distinguished by their belligerence and lack of grace. In this respect they harmonize with the knee-sprung fakers of our own new college of holy men. It is doubtful that the Europeans include any rascals comparable to the jail-birds in our own great Hall of Shame, however, for, in Europe, crime has been a profession by itself. The parision Apache, never aspired to power in the general federation of French workers. They have their Phillip Murray and Deacon Will Gandy, but no opposite numbers for our Pats and Boives, umbrella Mike Boyles or Ben Prosses.

There is danger in the fact that Douglas is a cynic of the sordid school of Oliver Wendell Holmes. He showed what a bad man he was when he got down off the outfit conceived in crime and born of anarchy, and counseled that we become the new government of the United States. It went without saying that he invited them to elect him president of that new government, with the implicit assurance that he would be the kind of man.

Later, Douglas pretended not to be aware that the American unions formally deny the citizen rights guaranteed by the constitution which he has sworn to uphold. This was dishonest for he is a very well-informed politician and knows, of course, that all union constitutions are but the discipline of the union bosses.

It is unnecessary to deal any further with John in this study. He knows that American unionism is not a labor movement but a corruption, but he is altogether trivial and this is as much publicity as he deserves.

To show the quality of the men that American unions would send abroad I recall a few distinguished brothers who were sent overseas by the A. F. of L. and President Roosevelt. The first in point of distinction was Tommy Lyle, of Chicago. He was business agent of the local moving picture operators' union and boss of the big national union of the movie and stage trades, excluding only actors.

There were only 350 members of his local where there were 750 jobs. He sold work permits to the other 400 workers for 10 per cent of their pay. The union bosses owned many of the jobs outright, property however and allowed permit men to work them for 50 per cent of the pay. Mahoy had about 50 jobs in his own name which were let out to the serfs on this share-cropper system. He had partners' shares in several big theatres. Twice a year regularly he won a prize of $5,000 offered by the employers to the best operator in the union. He owed $300,000 on his income tax when a colleague blew his head off with a shotgun in 1935 to make room for George E. Browne, another gunman, thief and racketeer, who then became a vice-president.

It is unnecessary to deal any further with John in this study. He knows that American unionism is not a labor movement but a corruption, but he is altogether trivial and this is as much publicity as he deserves.

The first in point of distinction was Tommy Lyle, of Chicago. He was business agent of the local moving picture operators' union and boss of the big national union of the movie and stage trades, excluding only actors.

There were only 350 members of his local where there were 750 jobs. He sold work permits to the other 400 workers for 10 per cent of their pay. The union bosses owned many of the jobs outright, property however and allowed permit men to work them for 50 per cent of the pay. Mahoy had about 50 jobs in his own name which were let out to the serfs on this share-cropper system. He had partners' shares in several big theatres. Twice a year regularly he won a prize of $5,000 offered by the employers to the best operator in the union. He owed $300,000 on his income tax when a colleague blew his head off with a shotgun in 1935 to make room for George E. Browne, another gunman, thief and racketeer, who then became a vice-president.

It is unnecessary to deal any further with John in this study. He knows that American unionism is not a labor movement but a corruption, but he is altogether trivial and this is as much publicity as he deserves.

Little Rock, Jan. 18—(UP)—The proposed home rule amendment to amputate veterans who receive special automobiles from the government. The bill was introduced last week by Senators Guy Jones of Conway and Bob Bailey, Jr., Russellville. It now goes to the house.

A host of new bills found their way into the senate during the morning. Senators Jerry Scereton of Hesston and Weems Trussell of Fort Worth submitted a proposal which would add a curb loan shark. The bill seeks to place lending companies under jurisdiction of the state banking department. It specifically exempts appliance sales companies which finance their own sales.

Gift Makes Child Welfare Group Angry

Washington, Jan. 18—(UP)—The Children's Aid Society, Inc., was besieged with protests from contributors today for accepting Mrs. Eva Peron's gift of clothing for 500 needy youngsters.

Mrs. Ralph E. Vawters, head of the private Washington charitable organization, said one member of the society's advisory board had resigned because of the donation from Argentina's first lady. "A lot of people who had promised to contribute clothing," she said, "have phoned to say they can't contribute any more. They say they wouldn't give us a cent now."

Then she added philosophically, "I guess we'll live it down, though."

After much confusion and uncertainty, the society yesterday accepted six crates of clothing donated by the Maria Eva Duarre De Peron Social foundation. The foundation is headed by the wife of Argentina's president. The Argentine embassy here explained that the gift was intended as a token of friendship from the children of Argentina to those of the United States.

Before accepting the contribution, the society asked the state department whether it might provoke an "international incident." Henry Dearborn of the division of Argentine affairs said he didn't see why it should.

The Washington youngsters weren't much concerned over the possible political overtones. To them, clothes were clothes, and they need them. Even as Mrs. Vawters told of her troubles, a band of ragged moppets clattered about the crates, peering eagerly through the slats.

"As you can see, we're very scant on clothes," Mrs. Vawters said, holding up one pair of small brown shoes and pointing to a rack that contained less than a dozen other hangers.

She and her clergyman husband have written the Argentine embassy expressing their thanks for the "unexpected kindness."

"I wish we'd get a few shipwrecked sailors washed ashore," mused the cannibal chief. "What I need is a dose of salts."

Born blind, twins Barbara Jo, left, and Bette Jean Nord, 2, of Seattle, Wash., will see some day, if the 1800 members of the Street Car Men's Union, Local 587, have anything to say about it. They put in long hours of extra holiday work so they could turn over about $3600 in pay to the girls' father, Walter Nord, a fellow bus driver, to pay for special surgery.

They reached Cielito Lindo just as dusk. Merry stood for a moment beside the car, savoring the beauty of the weather, the glory of the green lawns and shrubbery, the budding azaleas and the mounds of feathery yellow forsythia, already in full bloom. Back in New York, it had been cold and snow had still covered the park important enough to be kept open by snow plows. Here it was the very heart of spring.

Carrie Bagby came out of the car and greeted her courteously, but with a hint of alarm in his manner, and spoke to her in his words: "Well, Merry, for your mother's sake, I'm mighty glad you could tear yourself away from all your fun and good times. I'm afraid she has missed you badly."

Merry felt the usual twinge of dislike that she had always experienced in his presence but made herself say quietly, "I'm sorry. I've missed her, too. I'll go right into her. Where is she?"

"Lying down in her room," said Carter, and while his tone was mild it was completely lacking in any warmth.

"I just don't like the man—he doesn't mean to be offensive," she tried to tell herself as she ran into the house and to the door of her mother's room.

Susan was lying on the chaise longue in a dairy, too youthful negligee, a handkerchief dampened with lilac cologne on her forehead. It was an atmosphere to which Merry had become unhappily accustomed in the months immediately preceding the break-up.

"Who is it?" asked Susan fretfully. And then Merry was beside her, kneeling, her arms about Susan, holding her close. There was an exchange of murmured endearments and greetings, and then Susan raised herself on the chaise longue and pushed Merry away from her and said eagerly, "Let me look at you, darling. Why, you're thinner and your lovely tan is gone."

Merry laughed and stood up, turning swiftly before her mother, deliberately breaking her voice gay and vivacious.

"Darling, of course my tan is gone. Now York blizzards aren't supposed to give one a nice tan. And I'm not thin—I've just maybe grown a little taller."

Susan was sitting up now, peering at Merry, taking in the beautiful tailored beige suit, the brown alligator pumps, the matching brown hat, the suede gloves and bag. The mink coat Merry had dropped on a chair.

"My dear! That suit is much too old for you! And a mink coat—most unsuitable! Your father must be making a fortune." There was a thin, unpleasant edge to Susan's voice.

"The coat, angel, was a gift from Lissa."

"Oh, indeed? And did she think we were so poverty stricken that we were objects of charity to be taken out and outfitted like slum children? Or is it that her conscience is bothering her for breaking up a home?" Susan's voice was shaking and ugly splotches of color stained her thin cheeks.

Merry was startled at the sight of so much animosity.

"Mother dear, Lissa's not like that at all! Why, she's a grand person."

"She must be, to have taken you from your mother for so long!"

Merry stared at her, shocked.

"But, Mother, that's very unfair!" she burst out without thinking. "You're as good as any Dad to be happy, as you and Carter are!"

Susan set her thin lips in a stubborn line and Merry heard herself saying something she had never dreamed of saying to her mother: "You are happy, aren't you, Mother?"

Susan's eyes flashed.

"Of course I'm happy. Why wouldn't I be, with a husband who is devoted to me and who thinks of nothing except my wishes? It's only that I resent this creature stealing my husband and now trying to take my daughter!"

"Mum, dear," Merry spoke in the gentle tone one would use to an unreasonable child, "you've got it all wrong. I like Lissa, and she was good to me, and she and Dad seem to be perfectly happy."

Susan flung off the crusted colored afghan which was across her feet and swung herself up.

"I don't care to discuss that creature with you, or anyone else. Merry," Susan's tone was cold and cutting. "It's time to get dressed for dinner. You'll want to change, of course. Carter and I always

Progress Marked in New Vick Slogan

A cheerful picture of America's market potential has been drawn by Vick Chemical Co., makers of Vicks VapoRub, Va-tro-nol nose drops, Inhaler and Medicated Cough Drops. The firm's well-known "mark-out" slogan, indicating Vick progress since a beginning in 1905, and a sale of 17 million packages in 1917, has recently been changed for the fourth time. The new slogan shows a record figure of over 117 million Vick Packages Used Yearly. The old records were 26, 53, and 94 millions.

This steady growth through wars and depressions is due, Vick Board Chairman, L. Richardson says, to concentration on quality, and ever-increasing consumer acceptance of Vick products for relieving the miseries of colds. Since the company's inception, newspaper advertising has been used consistently.

Vick Chemical was founded by Lunsford Richardson in Greensboro, N.C. in 1905. The first laboratory was in his drugstore, where writer O. Henry once worked. Vick now has two manufacturing laboratories in the United States, and twelve more in as many foreign countries.

Says Atlanta Can't Keep Robinson Out

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 18—(UP)—It was the opinion of two of Georgia's leading attorneys today that no existing laws prohibit the appearance of Negro stars Jackie Robinson and Roy Campanella with the Brooklyn Dodgers in exhibition games here, April 8, 9, 10.

Protest against the playing of the Negro pair against the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association has been raised by the Ku Klux Klan.

"Georgia has laws dealing with segregation in the school system, transportation, intermarriage and such," said State Attorney-General Eugene Cook.

"I know of no laws that forbid Negroes playing baseball against whites."

The opinion that there were no city laws, either, forbidding Negroes and whites to play baseball together was stated by Atlanta City Attorney Jack Savage.
